

single event of Early Modern Mediterranean. Confronting the graphic and textual first-hand accounts, we propose a (re) construction of the image of the Alcácer Quibir battlefield as perceived by eyewitnesses.

ACCORDING TO THE OTTOMAN ARCHIVE DOCUMENTS SOME PRECAUTIONS WHICH WERE TAKEN REGARDING THE SLAVE TRADE ABOLITION IN THE XIX CENTURY

Author: Hava Onalan (University of Istanbul)

In Africa, the slave trade was banned officially in the 2nd of July of 1890 at Brussels Conference. However, in order to finish the slave trade, some measures were taken by the Ottoman Empire in 1857.

GLIMPSES AND MEMORY. ZANZIBAR, DOOR OF THE PORTUGUESE INDIAN OCEAN

Author: Maria João Castro (CHAM/NOVA FCSH)

The aim of this article is to map the Portuguese colonial presence on the island of Zanzibar from the 16th century to the ascendancy of the European empires in the partition of Africa in the 19th century, in a reflection that is drawn in the light of postcolonial studies.

THE MEMORY OF THE OTHER IN WAR WRITING A CASE STUDY - JORGE DE HENIN'S MEMORIAL

Author: Ana Paula Avelar (CHAM/NOVA FCSH; Aberta University)

I will frame discursive modalities within the context of coeval textual and visual representations in extra-European spaces: decoding how narrative modalities depicted military events, and their actors, in a historical context, and the way the concepts of War and Peace were thus revisited.

Thu 18th Jul, 09:30-11:00

THE EARLY HISTORY OF ELMINA - COLONIAL OR INDIGENOUS?

Author: Harald Gropp

In 1471 the Portuguese reach Elmina (in today Ghana) or São Jorge da Mina and built a fort there in 1482. Were they the first Europeans in Elmina? Were they the first "foreigners"? What about trade connections of the indigenous people? These questions of "precolonial" history will be discussed.

MOVEMENTS IN THE GLOBAL GEOPOLITICAL BOARD: A HISTORICAL REVIEW OF THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN BRAZIL AND AFRICA

Author: Vanessa Andrade (UERJ)

This research discusses the approximation between Brazil and the African continent, a South-South cooperation, throughout history. It shows the scientific-technical and informative period, as a globalization facilitator, leading to a strengthening of economics and geopolitics relations between them.

MOZAMBIQUE - A GIFT OF MEMORIES FOR MY MOTHER

Author: Manuela Gonzaga

Once we lived in Mozambique. How did it happen? How were people selected to live overseas? And how was life there? My paper deals not only with memories but raises many questions on the life in the Portuguese colonial era.